

SEPTEMBER MURDER

Agony In Flesh

street date: 20 February 2009

Almighty. Crushing. Sick. Death Metal.

SEPTEMBER MURDER, founded in 2004, already caused a sensation throughout Europe with their in autumn 2007 released EP "After Every Setting Sun", being enormously praised consistently in the media.

The EP not only achieved best notes, the band was also attested to be one of the greatest hopes in Death Metal, having the potential to be just as popular as Cannibal Corpse, Entombed or Suffocation (Bleeding For Metal). Others consider SEPTEMBER MURDER being the "next big thing in German Death Metal, next to Necrophagist" (metal.de).

Now, about fourteen months after their previous release, SEPTEMBER MURDER present their first album "Agony In Flesh" and get ready to fulfill the set hopes and expectations. Will they succeed? Well, at least "Agony In Flesh" has it all for being an excellent Death Metal album. A straight, transparent and mighty production. A rhythm section crushing almost everything and riffs having the potential to advance to classics. Musically, SEPTEMBER MURDER can serve friends of the US brutal Death Metal culture as well as followers of swedish old school heroes. Doing so, the quartet is approaching this so freshly, dynamically and enthusiastically that one can really feel their enjoyment while playing.

This album is hitting the spot for headbanging in front of your mirror and for letting the world be just one: DEATH METAL.
